

Time Is a River

Now in mass market and a simultaneous trade paperback edition, New York Times bestselling author Mary Alice Monroe's wonderfully insightful novel that sweeps readers away to the seductive southern landscape joining books by such authors as Sue Monk Kidd and Anne Rivers Siddons. Mia Landon travels to a mountain sanctuary near Asheville, North Carolina while she begins her recovery from breast cancer. There, in the cabin at Watkins Glenn, Mia discovers the long lost journal of a well-known fly-fisherwoman from the 1920s, Kate Watkins. Reading Kates inspiring words recounting her sensational adventures on the river coaxes an otherwise withdrawn Mia from her shell and gives her the desire to reconnect with the world around her. And as she learns to fish, she also uncovers surprising secrets that span generations and a hidden scandal that has the power to change not only her own life, but also those who live at Watkins Glenn. Filled with her trademark evocative prose and rich emotional drama, Time Is a River delves into the complexity of human connections in extraordinarily relatable and touching ways.
